Linedata launches its new generation platform for credit origination and risk management

Seattle, London, New York, Paris, Toronto, February 13, 2020 – Linedata (Euronext Paris: LIN), a global provider of credit and asset management technology, data and services has released its new generation platform for credit origination and risk management, Linedata Capitalstream 2020. This cloud-based platform is built with the latest technologies and offers continuous delivery of new features and enhancements.

“Linedata is helping financial institutions accelerate their digital transformation,” said Jamil Jiva, EVP of Lending and Leasing North America at Linedata. “Already known for its unmatched flexibility and rich functionality, Linedata Capitalstream 2020 will put our clients at the forefront of digital transformation and drive their growth.”

The platform significantly lowers clients’ total cost of ownership while not sacrificing industry-leading depth of functionality. The continuous delivery of new features and enhancements is made possible by containerization, which enables components to be updated without requiring changes to the platform or testing of the entire system. Because of this important technology, clients will derive immediate benefits from Linedata’s continuing investments in R&D.

Linedata Capitalstream 2020 is compatible with market leading public cloud platforms. The solution will continue to offer easy integration with third-party and legacy systems with powerful APIs and microservices.
